

FOUNDATION MUKUYU

The MUKUYU Foundation is a real and virtual place of opportunities and means, where people can explore, connect, research and educate themselves about the variegated landscape of Agriculture (food production) and Urban Nature.

What does Mukuyu mean?

For the people of central Africa, Mukuyu is the sycamore tree (Ficus sycamorus), a special tree indeed: Mukuyu is the fulcrum of their social gathering, it provides food (fruit), fodder (leaves), fibres for textiles (young branches), colour (from the bark), and its wood, light yet durable, is suitable for many uses, even its ashes are used as salt and to amend the soil.

WE WALK THE EARTH WITHOUT OWNING HER

What are Mukuyu's values?

Sobriety (in depth analysis), kindness and biocentric ethics; reliable science to achieve a just and equitable society, while promoting diversity and cross contamination of cultures.

What does Mukuyu do?

At Mukuyu, we devise and carry out projects of applied research, education and social integration. We aim to overcome boundaries, to build positive connections between science, businesses and people. We nurture opportunities for discussion and integration, to build broad consensus in order to achieve dynamic change.

WE BUILD BRIDGES BETWEEN SCIENCE AND EXPERIENCE

Where did Mukuyu begin?

Adriano, Erica, Elena - inspired by their personal and professional lives in science and applied research at Landlab - and the Consortium Rete Pictor - enriched by their social and cultural experiences - they envisioned together the spirit and the contents of the Mukuyu Foundation.

EARTH IS FOR ALL, NOT (A) MINE

What are Mukuyu goals?

Scientific research for the common good, open source science to promote fair systems: fair for the soil, the air, the water, and the biome; fair for the people producing food, and for Nature in urban areas.

WE EXPLORE THE DNA, IT BELONGS TO US ALL

What are Mukuyu's fields of work?

- The health of the soil
- The biodiversity in urban and farm land
- The slavery in agriculture
- Rethinking food from the roots
- The change at urban and farm fringes

REJOIN FOOD WITH NATURE

And you? Are you in?

Join us, the foundation is open and thrives with your participation. People and organizations, from anywhere in the world, sharing MUKUYU vision, are welcomed as members and invited to join. Have a say by electing the scientific committee and the board.

JOIN US

info@mukuyu.net

mukuyu.net